“ Our condolences to the family. Walter was a very gracious and kindly man. He sat in front of us in church on many, many Sundays. When his health began to decline we really missed him. Rest in Jesus arms Walter.

“ Distance and timing had never given me and Uncle Walt many opportunities to be around each other much in life and most of those times were when I was a boy; but they were memorable times. I remember him as always kind and soft spoken with a comforting smile and a genuine interest in whoever he was talking to--he always had a story to tell and Jesus Christ was always on his mind. When I was about ten years old, on one of those rare times when we were at the same place at the same time, I was running around in my grandparent's garden trying to fly a kite. Uncle Walt saw me struggling and came out to help. He patiently showed me what to do and then yelled out guidance as I ran through the field happily watching the kite take flight behind me. When I saw Uncle Walt just a few weeks ago, he remembered that day when over 50 years ago he taught me to fly a kite. Isn't it fascinating what seemingly unremarkable events become the memories of a lifetime? The reason a kite flies is because all the forces that act upon it are perfectly countered by its reaction to those forces. What a wonderful comparison to Uncle Walt's life: no matter what forces tried to keep him down, he countered with an unwavering faith in Jesus Christ. I was in a beautiful but particularly windy place the day I learned Uncle Walt had died and I couldn't help but think how he and Jesus must be running through heaven's gardens flying a kite!
