“ Kelly was my best friend for more than 40 years. Her wings are made silken gold and a gown of silvery white. God has called his angel, in the early morning light. She flew without a care to his loving arms that waited, with a love that is strong and unabated. Those left behind have mourned and cried for we are broken hearted, for we are the ones who hurt, but not she who has departed. She rests and is whole within his loving grace, waiting for us to come and saving us a restful place.

I shall forever miss you Yin, love Yang.
