“ Sherrel and I met at 22--same age--at a factory. She was on her own with 2 small babies--Kim and Ted. Then a year later she remarried and had another son, and I believe was happy and healthy with her new life. I moved away, and she to Midway.

Sherrel always came to work wearing spanking freshly ironed clothes, and so did her little girl Kim when I saw her. Our mom Nanette did her ironing for her (free, of course.)

I will miss Sherrel. But I am glad her many challenges and suffering are over. Thru medical, the death of her husband, and the dollar worries that come with extensive medical care, she was always upbeat and smiling. She was the most humble person I have ever met. She still seemed to trust in God despite it all--unwavering.

Sherrel may have felt she had no special talents, but she did.

The most important one of all--the ability to inspire others, as she did me, with her perseverance, courage, cheerfulness, and trusting nature. I imagine everyone who came across her will remember her that way.

And I'm glad she never had to leave her beloved farm she and her husband bot in the 1970's.
